What to expect

The course is suitable for business developers who need an in-depth understanding of blockchain technology and cryptocurrencies. The course delivers an insight into the Ethereum and Hyperledger platforms among others; you will develop your understanding of the full range of potential blockchain use cases and business models. As more and more blockchainbased applications evolve, an in-depth knowledge of the underlying technologies is becoming indispensable. Equipped with this knowledge, you can leverage blockchain opportunities to build your company's digital future.

Method

The course consists of two 4-day weeks. You may also choose not to take part in the full certification course and attend the first week only (modules 1–4). In this case, you will not be required to write a paper; instead, you will receive a certificate of attendance.

Ideal for

Innovation managers, CIOs and CDOs, IT strategists, executive managers and experts in business administration, as well as individuals who would like to learn more about blockchain technology.

Requirements

No coding experience required!

*Credits are given according to the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) for academic and continuing education qualifications. Credits are determined by the amount of time needed to complete the certification course. This includes presence days as well as the individual study time before and after needed to earn the certificate. Credits are not at all based on the level of learning (1 credit = 25 – 30 Study Hours).

 The first compact course (modules 1-4) can also be booked individually.

This information sheet provides a general overview of the course described above. Frankfurt School of Finance & Management reserves the right to revise or modify both course curriculum and schedule. This also applies to course fees, as well as internal and external examination fees.
