What to expect

Continually changing framework conditions and growing demands on a company's rate of change demand continuous and systematic organisational realignment. The management of projects has become a core function of successful companies. Therefore, qualified project managers and teams that work well together are needed. Frankfurt School, in cooperation with Tiba Managementberatung GmbH, offers a practice-oriented qualification programme that is tailored to current project practice.

The focus of the certificate is not on theoretical aspects, but rather on developing solutions for specific case studies.

Due to the open design of the program, you as a participant are the focus of attention and can address your individual use cases and specifically advance your career.

Ideal for

Project staff, (future) project managers, as well as persons in related functions
